

Notice of Agreement for the Merger through Absorption (Simplified Absorption-type Merger) of a Consolidated Subsidiary (Fujitsu Laboratories Limited) of Fujitsu Limited

Tokyo, January 28, 2021 — Fujitsu Limited (herein after referred to as “Fujitsu”) announced today that Fujitsu has made a resolution at its board of directors meeting held today that effective on April 1, 2021, its consolidated subsidiary, Fujitsu Laboratories Limited (hereinafter referred to as “Fujitsu Laboratories”) will merge with Fujitsu and it has concluded an agreement for an absorption-type merger with Fujitsu Laboratories.

Because the merger with Fujitsu Laboratories is an absorption-type merger of a consolidated subsidiary, certain disclosure items and details have been omitted from this notice.

1. Purpose of the Merger

In its Management Direction presentation in September 2019, Fujitsu announced its intent to transform from an IT company into a DX company to lead the digital transformation of its customers and other stakeholders and play an even greater role in contributing to the resolution of social issues. To accelerate this shift by driving innovation through the research and development of advanced technologies, Fujitsu Laboratories will be fully integrated into Fujitsu. The move offers Fujitsu the potential to further strengthen its technological strategic planning function by consolidating research and analysis functions scattered throughout the company. These will be collectively established as a new organization called “Fujitsu Research” with direct report to the CTO to cement the alignment of this critical role with the company’s leadership team, while promoting further research and development with rapid decision-making and judgments in line with Fujitsu’s overall direction and strategy.
